Guidelines for Contributors

Journal of Contemporary Research in Management welcomes innovative and original research based articles and case studies in all functional areas of management. The manuscripts (including references and appendices) should not go beyond 4500 words.

I. Sections of the Manuscript (note that not all papers have all sections - write your paper to fit your requirements)

-Title page: This includes paper title, author(s), and institutional affiliation. This should be center aligned. Corresponding Author is to be specified with address and Email address

-Abstract (on a separate page): This is a brief summary of your study. Limit to 200 words

-Keywords - Minimum of three keywords to be given below the abstract

-Text (start on a separate page) Justify the text.

This usually consists of the following sections (Introduction, Literature Framework, Methodology, Analysis, Results and Discussion and Conclusion)

-References (on a separate page)

-Appendices

II) Typing formats for manuscripts

General: 1-inch margins all around and 12 pt. Times Roman. All text should be double-spaced

Table: Title should be placed on the top of table, Title and Table center alignment, Table to be fit to window, Output from statistical software should not be copied directly but should be as per table text format. Source of the table, if any, should be given immediately underneath the table.

References: Type "References" at top (centered, Not underlined), Double space all reference material. Use the following tips;

(a) Periodical (Italicize journal title and volume, including comma.)

Harter, S., & Whitesell, N. R. (1997). Multiple pathways to depression and adjustment among adolescents. Development and Psychopathology, 9, 835-854.

(b) Chapter (Italicize title of book and include page numbers. Note capitalization.)

Harter, S. (1988). Causes and consequences of low self-esteem in children and adolescents. In R. F. Baumeister (Ed.), Self-esteem: The puzzle of low self-regard (pp. 87-116). New York: Plenum.

(c) Book (Italicize title of book. For locations other than major publishing locations such as New York, Paris, and others listed on p.217, put city and state abbreviation: Hillsdale, NJ: Erlbaum. When necessary, put the country.) APA Publication 6

Harter, S. (Year). The cognitive and social construction of the developing self. New York: Guilford Press.

(d) Unpublished doctoral dissertation (italicize title), Working Paper and Discussion Paper

Johnson, E. (1995). The role of social support and gender orientation in adolescent female development. Unpublished doctoral dissertation, University of Denver, Denver, CO.

(e) Sources on the Internet (at minimum, provide document title, date, URL and when possible, the author of a document)

Miller, M.B. (2001, April 20). Resources for majors. Psychology Online, 4, Article 012b. Retrieved May 5, 2001, from <http://du.edu/psychology/volume4/onl004012b.html>.

Order of entries in the reference list

1. Alphabetize references by surname of first author.
2. If there is a reference by a single author with multiple publication years, list earlier years of publication first (the same applies to references with same multiple authors).

References in the text

-When using the ideas of others, you must acknowledge them as a source. For example;

Rather than ... the self (Harter, 1997). Or Harter (1997) argued that ...

If you are using the exact wording of another person, you must put the wording in quotes and cite the author(s) and the page number (or other wise, it will amount to plagiarism).

III) Plagiarism amounts to complete rejection of the article (Plagiarism includes copying from internet or books or any other sources, except acknowledged quotes and definitions).
